The Revised Roll of Death IN NEW YORK TONIGHT Now Completed By Wireless

MASTER REALIZED PERIL

Flashes From the Carpathia, With Rescued on Board Steaming Under Full Speed for New York, Give Some Details of Ocean Disaster.

Only 328 of Titanic's Cabin Passengers Rescued.

WRECK NEWS IS SUPPRESSED

All Efforts to Secure Details of What Happened on Board White Star Liner in Thrilling Moments That Followed When Ship's Doom Was Made Known Are Thwarted by Officers on Board Carpathia, Which Is Due in New York Tomorrow.

New York, April 18.—Latest wireless returns from the Carpathia indicate that the roll of the saved from the Titanic disaster is now complete. It is now practically definitely known that only 332 of the 655 cabin passengers of the Titanic are safe on board the rescue ship. The 353 cabin passengers whose names have not appeared in the list sent ashore by wireless must probably be conceded as among the 1,312 lives which the collision of the mammoth new steamer with an iceberg off the Newfoundland banks Sunday night is believed to have taken.

Thousands of hopeful hearts were turned to despairing ones when the announcement was made that the United States cruisers Chester and Salem had relayed the names of the cabin passengers aboard the Carpathia to the government wireless station at Newport.

Beyond even the mystery of how the mammoth Titanic met her fate, another mystery, evolved by the events of the past three days, forced itself to the front.

Within Wireless Zone.

Although the rescue ship Carpathia was within the zone of wireless communication for hours and both shore stations and relaying ships were able to obtain from her long lists of survivors among the steerage passengers, and to send and receive numerous short messages from and to private individuals, not a word of matter descriptive of the manner in which the steamer received her death blow, or how those on board the doomed liner comforted themselves in the face of impending doom, reached the shore.

Given the names of the first and second-cabin passengers and the assurance, which the Carpathia furnished, that she had no more of these to offer, the word of worldwide interest demanded of the Cunarder was that which would reveal the long withheld secret of what took place on the Titanic decks when it became known that the fate of the liner was sealed.

But the word was not spoken. Neither was there any explanation forthcoming in the surviving officers of the Titanic as to how their ship came to strike the hidden obstructed ocean. From the Marconi offices word came that repeatedly, when the wireless working conditions were practically perfect, the Carpathia was asked to convey to the waiting world some idea of what were the momentous happenings on the Titanic in the terrible three hours and 55 minutes between the time when she struck the iceberg off the banks and that of her final plunge to the bottom.

Say Operator Tired.

One explanation was that the wireless operator of the Carpathia was exhausted as a result of his three days' work at the key. But among the list of the rescued on board the Carpathia is the second wireless operator of the Titanic, who might Scores Senate For Killing Arbitration Treaties With Amendments—Fears That Embarrassing Situations May Arise If United States Does Not Help Weaker Central American States Help Themselves—Believes Nicaraguan Loan Will Go Through.

Washington, April 18.—Secretary Knox returned to Washington after a two-months' round of friendly calls on the republics of Central America and the Caribbean. The Knox party arrived at the Washington navy yard on board the president's yacht Sylph.

Secretary Knox declined to comment upon the results his mission might have except to make the single prediction that the senate will ratify the Nicaraguan loan convention. Mr. Knox paid his respects to the senate in connection with the alteration of the arbitration treaties by that body since his departure. The secretary declared in view of "extreme care" which the senate took to prevent any phase of the Monroe doctrine from ever being submitted to arbitration, he felt more than ever convinced of the logic and wisdom of the United States helping the weaker republics to help themselves to avoid specific conditions which might prove embarrassing to the United States.

"It is well known there have existed in the United States a small coterie of disinterested persons who have been endeavoring to block reforms essential to the progress of some of the weaker republics.

"What effect my visit may have in permanently improving our relations with and conditions in the countries I have visited, is largely a matter of conjecture. The means through which the president felt that good results might be accomplished were diligently employed.

"It was most gratifying to observe the genuine friendliness towards and interest in the people of the United States in all the countries I visited and the warmth of its manifestation when the real purpose of my mission was appreciated."

Four Killed In Storm.

New Orleans, La., April 18.—Four persons were killed and considerable damage was done to property in several south Louisiana towns by electric rain and windstorms. In the early crop district north of New Orleans, the damage will be heaviest, it is estimated. Most of the damage was confined to towns just north or west of New Orleans.

Explosion Wrecks Coal Mine.

Cardiff, Wales, April 18.—An explosion of gas wrecked the Trane coal mine at Giffa-hoeh. Rescue parties removed three bodies of mangled dead and five injured within a few hours after the explosion, but could give no definite estimate of the dead, because they could not penetrate all the chambers.

Alleged Murderer Captured.

Stockton, Cal., April 18.—William A. Dorr, wanted at Lynn, Mass., for the murder of George E. Marsh, was captured here by Chief Briars while he was attempting to call up his aunt over the telephone from a coffee house in the red light district.

FORMER SENATOR DICK IN RACE

Has His Eye Glued on Old Seat in Lower House.

Columbus, O., April 18.—Former United States Senator Charles Dick is to seek the Republican nomination for congress in the nineteenth district according to word given out here by former Adjutant General Critchfield, his close friend. General Dick lives in Akron and represented the district in congress for several terms before his election to the senate. Among his opponents for the nomination this year will be former State Representative Warren B. Thomas of Trumbull county.

C. M. Brumbaugh, deputy state superintendent of insurance, announced he again would seek the Democratic nomination for congress in this (the Twelfth) district.

As candidate for the Tenth district Republican nomination, former State Senator Daniel Webster Williams of Jackson has announced himself. His opponent will be the present congressman, R. M. Switzer of Gallipolis.

DAYTON LAWYER ROYALLY SCORED BY ANDERSON

Columbus, O., April 18.—Charges that Attorney John A. McMahon of Dayton on last Friday indulged in "falseness" of the supreme court for the deliberate purpose of winning his case before that court, and that he violated a long-established court rule, were made on the floor of the constitutional convention by Delegate D. F. Anderson of Mahoning county.

The Anderson statements were made under the special privileges of delegates and were in reply to the McMahon speech before the supreme court, since in that speech Mr. Anderson himself was the object of verbal attack for his previous criticism of the supreme court when the convention was discussing judicial reform. The Anderson speech was followed by a speech from Delegate Halfhill of Allen county in defense of Mr. McMahon.

Helena, the "Babies' Queen" Of Italy, and Her Children

It has been suggested that the war against Turkey may have been inspired by the queen of Italy, who is the daughter of King Nicholas of Montenegro, the tiny kingdom lying on the Adriatic borders of the Ottoman empire. The Montenegrins are the hereditary enemies of the Turks and have been for centuries subject to incursions by Moslem bands, which delighted in carrying away Christian captives for the Turkish harems. Naturally a Montenegrin princess could have little love for such neighbors, and it is pretty certain that the queen, who is reported to be enthusiastic over the war, did not regret its breaking out even if she had no hand in it. Queen Helena is one of the few handsome women of European royal families. She has been so active in establishing free nurseries and hospitals for children that she is affectionately called the "babies' queen." The photograph here reproduced shows her with her own children, Princess Isabella, Princess Mafalda, Prince Humbert (the heir apparent) and Princess Giovanna.

MINORITY REPORT CAUSTIC

Declares That Proposition to Retire Elective Officers at Will of People Is Obnoxious to Spirit of Our Institutions—Urges More Efficient Means of Impeaching Crooked Jurists—Convention Votes to Abolish Capital Punishment For Crime.

Columbus, O., April 18.—The constitutional convention by a vote of 50 to 48, expressed its disapproval of the proposition to take up and discuss the recall of public elective officials.

The vote may settle the recall proposition so far as the convention is concerned.

By substantial majorities the convention adopted a comprehensive proposal for conservation of natural resources and reconsidered and adopted the Pierce proposal, which was defeated the day before, to do away with capital punishment for crime. If the Pierce proposal is ratified by the people at the polls there will be no more executions at the penitentiary.

Parliamentarians disputed over the status of the Watson recall proposal after the convention adjourned. The question came up under a special order to adopt the minority report of the initiative and referendum committee, which recommended indefinite postponement of the proposal. The report was signed by Delegates Halfhill, Dunlap, Lampson and Evans. The majority report recommended adoption of the proposal. After brief discussion Mr. Donahy moved to table both reports. The motion carried, 50 to 48, but clerks made a mistake in computation and President Bigelow announced its defeat, 49 to 49. Before the mistake could be corrected the convention recessed.

Two Radicals Flop.

The action is declared to leave the proposal without prejudice in the committee and no further attempt may be made to report it out again, as slight discussion has shown that the proposal will be defeated if it ever reaches a vote. Two radicals, Judge Peck and Mr. Harris of Hamilton, joined the conservatives in debate opposing it. The minority said of the proposal:

"In its entirety it is obnoxious to the spirit of our institutions and is a supplemental blow aimed at the integrity of representative government.

"That the judges of our courts, being also elective public officers in this state and included within the scope of this proposal, the same is a gratuitous assault upon the honor and integrity of our judiciary, and no condition subsists or ever has existed in Ohio, that remotely justifies creating any such procedure or making it a part of our fundamental law.

"That the duties of every elective public officer of this state are defined by the law of the land, which law their oath of office compels them to obey and support, and if any transgresses this obligation they should be tried by the law on charge duly made, before a tribunal, with orderly procedure under rules of evidence acknowledged and subsisting in all stable governments, and they should not be assailed from the hustings and tried at the polls by popular tumult or be compelled to face destruction of their honor through a verdict rendered by clamor, corruption or partisan prejudice."

The minority recommended more efficient means of impeachment as a remedy for whatever fault exists with the judiciary. The convention will consider the Dwyer proposal embodying this idea today.

WRECK NEWS IS SUPPRESSED

All Efforts to Secure Details of What Happened on Board White Star Liner in Thrilling Moments That Followed When Ship's Doom Was Made Known Are Thwarted by Officers on Board Carpathia, Which Is Due in New York Tomorrow.

New York, April 18.—Latest wireless returns from the Carpathia indicate that the roll of the saved from the Titanic disaster is now complete. It is now practically definitely known that only 332 of the 885 cabin passengers of the Titanic are safe on board the rescue ship. The 353 cabin passengers whose names have not appeared in the list sent ashore by wireless must probably be conceded as among the 1,312 lives which the collision of the mammoth new steamer with an iceberg in the Newfoundland banks Sunday night is believed to have taken.

Key Operator Tired.
One explanation was that the wireless operator of the Carpathia was exhausted as a result of his three days' work at the key. But among the list of the rescued on board the Carpathia is the second wireless operator of the Titanic, who might have been counted upon to relieve the worried sender of the Cunarder. In this disturbing silence, rumors agitated the city. One of these placed the loss of life at 2,000, but there was nothing more than an unverified dispatch as authority for the story. Another which was widely circulated described the collision of the Titanic with the iceberg, saying that the ship at 30-knots speed struck so hard that her framework buckled and that water poured in all the compartments except those in the midsection. It was a story of panic and terrible scenes following instantly on the crash, but the White Star line officials said they had received no such report and gave it no credence.

A report which persisted, and which carried with it some hope for those who have not seen the names of relatives or friends on the list given out by the White Star line, was that the Leyland liner Californian was bringing a few survivors to Boston, where she is due tomorrow evening.

ANXIOUSLY AWAITED
Liner Bearing Titanic Survivors Expected to Dock Tomorrow.

New York, April 18.—According to the latest advice received by the Cunard line, the steamship Carpathia, with survivors from the Titanic, should arrive at Sandy Hook at 9 o'clock this evening and get to the Cunard pier some time early tomorrow morning, assuming weather conditions are such that Captain Rossetti of the Carpathia will venture a run through Ambrose channel and up the bay.

All restrictions on making a quick entry into port have been removed by the federal officials. The boat will not be boarded by customs men and there will be no immigration inspectors.

General Nelson H. Henry, surveyor of the port, will have 40 inspectors at the pier.

Mayor Gaynor sent a letter to Police Commissioner Waldo requesting him to make adequate arrangements for handling the crowds. It is expected that there will be a great crowd at the Cunard pier when the Carpathia lands. Under the rule made by Surveyor Henry, passes have been issued only to near relatives of the survivors.

Washington's Beautiful New High School

If completed according to plans the new High School is shown in the above picture. A magnificent structure—one of beauty, and complete and modern in every detail.

At a meeting of the Board of Education of Washington C. H., Thursday morning it was decided to submit to the electors of this school district, for their ratification, the proposal to issue bonds to the amount of $30,000 for the purpose of completing the new High school building according to the plans accepted conditionally last October.

According to the resolution formally adopted the proposal will be submitted to the electors at the May primary election which will be held on May 21st next. The magnificent structure shown in the above picture is the new building as it will look when it is completed as originally planned and experts say that no city in Ohio can point to a more beautiful or more thoroughly equipped school building. It will provide for the needs of our schools in all ways that can be devised, and the requirements of the law and the convenience, the health and the general welfare of pupils, teachers and public, are almost imperative that the plans be not curtailed and the handsome and much needed structure emasculated in appearance, and its usefulness bridged.

The work of constructing the new High school building has been under way since last October and substantial progress has been made.

There were nine complete bids filed with the Board of Education and sixteen bids in all ranging from Mr. Karg's bid, which was $93,360 or the complete work according to the plans and specifications prepared by Architects Howard and Merriam, of Columbus, to $122,000, the highest bid.

After carefully considering all the time the contract was let, Mr. Karg's complete bid of $93,360 was accepted and then the work of modifying and trimming it into shape for the actual contract was taken up.

The work of cutting the bid into parts to meet the funds on hand and the amount of which only the board could contract, developed that the front building complete would cost $57,327, the heating, ventilating and plumbing would cost $11,975; total $69,302.

These figures, of course, contemplated nothing aside from the new building, leaving the old building—the present Central grade building—without being remodeled or joined to and included within the new structure complete as contemplated in the accepted plans.

After this was determined upon the Board still had a building which would require more money to construct than the funds on hand totaled.

Then the work of exclusion was carried still further and it was finally agreed that if the slate was substituted for the marble specified in the plans in connection with the plumbing there might be deducted from the bid total, $930.

If the $19.00 brick were substituted in the basement for the $15.00 brick specified, there might be deducted $650.

If all marble specified for the vestibule was omitted, there might be deducted $1500.

If all stairs were constructed of reinforced concrete instead of steel as specified, there might be deducted $1200.

If all tile floors specified for were changed to cement, there might be deducted $1000; total $5,300.

Deducting this $5,300 from the $69,302 bid for the new building without reference to the old Central building, reduced the total to $64,002, and at that figure, not exceeding the funds on hand, the agreement was made.

The Board of Education, however, at the time of contracting, reserved the option to include in all omitted items and construct the building according to the complete plans and specifications. This option holds good until July 1st, 1912.

The handsome new edifice planned overruns the available funds and the Board of Education being forbidden by law to contract for more expenditures than the money on hand did the only thing possible to be done under the circumstances, accepted the complete plans, contracted to the limit and optioned the part necessarily omitted.

It is the proximity of the expiration time on these options which makes action at this time imperative.

In constructing the Cherry Hill school making repairs at Sunnyside and East End, purchasing ground equipment and so on, the Board of Education finds that the original bond issue funds will not be sufficient to carry out the high school plan.

The resolution to submit the question to a vote on May 21st, passed Thursday morning.

Just what it means to the teachers, pupils and public to have this building completed right, may be gathered from the following very brief description.

It will be constructed of shaded pressed brick and stone. Two stories in height with a very commodious basement the floor of which will be only four feet below the yard level and absolutely damp proof.

The rear front, 126 feet, will project to the front of the side wings, 30 feet each in width, about five feet with the main entrance directly in the center. This entrance is recessed with broad stone steps, leading from the ground to the recess level and on the inside another short flight to the first floor level, marking an easy and graceful entrance was proper.

The sides are 156 feet 6 inches in length, that part connecting the new with the old building and that part of which includes the old building being only one story in height above the basement, which is the same throughout.

On each of the two sides the same exterior effect is carried out with an entrance facing Temple street in the new structure identical in effect with the North street or main entrance. To the rear of these entrances on both the Temple street and Paint street sides in that portion which includes the present or old building is another entrance leading to the first floor and to the basement carrying out the same general effect in each of those with the main entrance.

Then to the rear of the new building just where the connecting link with the old structure is made, on each side there is another entrance, which leads both to the basement and to the first floor. Providing in all seven entrances from the yard to the building.

The gymnasium will extend under the new building and that portion built to connect the new with the old and will provide ample room for all paraphernalia and a wide clear space for basketball and other like sports and exercises.

The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 750 and a stage 18 by 18 by 26 feet deep, including within its limits the present building and commencing at the rear of the new building extending across the connecting building.

Opening on the long corridors running in the rear of the new building with four broad doorways, the short length of time required to entirely empty the auditorium.

The locker and toilet arrangement for both boys and girls is the same on the second floor as in the basement and on the first floor.

The plans of course contemplate an elaborate and up-to-date, in fact, far ahead of present needs, building, because as the members of the school board express it, they are building for the future as well as the present needs.

It is proposed to do away entirely with the old building, using only the outside walls for a portion of the auditorium, the exterior to be faced and trimmed in exact accord with the new building.

The school building as planned, so far as the general run of people are capable of judging from the architects' drawings, would be a thing of beauty and a joy forever, at least during the life of the present generation.

often has this occurred that, each season he expects from one to a half dozen shocks.

Pleased Audience

The heavy fog of Wednesday night prevented a number from attending the entertainment given by the Knights of the Golden Eagle, but the brilliantly lighted I. O. O. F. hall held a nice audience nevertheless.

The affair was in the nature of a recital by Miss Forest Allen, reader, assisted by Miss Helen McKay, daughter of Rev. McKay, of Milledgeville, who is now studying music in Dayton.

Miss Allen, a graduate of the Flowers' School of Expression in Cincinnati, is one of those pleasing and versatile readers who always arouse anticipation and do not disappoint. Her musical voice, her admirable poise and naturalness are assets in themselves.

Probably her most finished and impressive reading was "The Master and the Erring Woman," the hushed silence at its close testifying to its effect. But it is in her child impersonations and stories that Miss Allen excels. The audience insisted upon her recall after this group, with a storm of applause. Her "Dialect Group" appealed to the audience. One of the most taking readings was the quarrel scene (from School for Scandal) in which Miss Allen did effective work in both the roles of the "Woman of Fashion" and the irascible "Sir Peter."

Miss McKay is quite young and has only recently begun the study of voice culture. For so young a student her voice is surprisingly strong and clear in its high notes. It is a high soprano, with lyric qualities, and undoubtedly possesses possibilities for the future.

Miss McKay sang several groups of artistic ballads, Miss Myrtle Bonham playing beautiful accompaniments.

Will Oil Streets

New Holland has just purchased 6,000 gallons of oil for the purpose of oiling all of her streets, the oil to be on the switch at that point by May 1st.

New Holland tried oiling last year, and like this and other places, found it to be a sure dust preventative. The tank of 6,000 gallons will oil all of the principal streets, and render the town immune from the dust nuisance throughout the summer.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Chardon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at Blackmer & Tansquary.

Colonial Theater

It has taken "Little Women" one of the classics of literature in this country forty-three years to reach the stage, even in these days of appropriating for theatrical purposes everything that may be converted into effective stage material.

But it will be next week at the Colonial Theater, Columbus, and the generations of youthful readers of the story will have the opportunity to see its characters on the stage. They speak, moreover, the lines which fall to them in the book so far as that is possible. It has been in some cases necessary to change the form of these to give them the value necessary on the stage, but in the majority of cases they are reproduced with exactness from the book. Then there have been slight changes in the progress of the story, but it has been the effort of the authors to keep "Little Women" on the stage just as it was between its well remembered covers.

So the three decades of girls that have cried over the death of Beth and gloried in the splendid pluck of brave Joe, then delighted in the independence of Meg in marrying the man she loved may see their favorites in the flesh behind the footlights. They will be there, moreover, clothed in the dress of the days in which they are supposed to have lived. They are in the dress of 1864 and all the objects required in the action of the play are true to the period in which the story of the book passed.

Three of the acts are laid in the sitting room of the March home in Concord. This means that the stage is set for a reproduction of the Alcott home. The fourth act shows the apple orchard at Plumfield where all the love stories are finished in this glorious harvest home.

Man Draws Lightning Remarkable Phenomenon

Robert Allemang, Bloomingburg Young Man, Who Has Suffered From Half Score of Shocks by Lightning, Escapes Injury When Bolt Hits All Around Him While Asleep.

One of the most remarkable freaks of lightning ever observed occurred escaped uninjured, as he has been in Bloomingburg about 2:00 o'clock more or less seriously stunned upon Wednesday morning during a violent half score of previous occasions, electric storm, when a bolt fell upon and apparently draws the lightning a residence of Acton Allemang. The bolt which struck the Allemangs the front and rear corners of the residence, fell with the rear of the house, three trees, one fence of a cannon, apparently enveloping st, and not injuring Mr. and Mrs. Allemang, or their son, Robert, after being within six feet of where the bolt penetrated.

Besides the unusual manner of the lightning striking, the even more remarkable part is the fact that Robert

TWO CALLS.

From out of the far northwest comes the call for laboring men and mechanics. Many thousands can be used, so it is claimed, on what must be accounted reliable authority, in the district about the city of Spokane, and many thousand more in the city proper, it is asserted, can find employment now, even before work on enormous public improvements, now under contemplation, is begun.

The wage scale in effect is given at from $2.00 to $2.75 per day for construction work and from $30 to $40 per month for farm work.

The call for men to come and work is as loud and as earnest, although not as distressing as that other call which comes out of the overcrowded cities of the East that men are starving for lack of work, at which they can earn enough money by honest toil to sustain themselves and their families.

The past winter has been a hard one, perhaps the most severe one which the poorer classes have been fated to endure in all their troubled lives, and the call from out the West should give hope to those who have suffered and are in distress.

From out that western land of promise is still extended the hand of hope and in the East the guide-posts still point West for opportunity.

Rapidly as our great West and Northwest has developed, and rapidly as it is still going forward, there is still better prospects for struggling humanity to better conditions than exists in the crowded cities of the East.

Notwithstanding the awful experiences passed through, notwithstanding the desolate prospect of the future, there are still thousands upon thousands of miserable human beings who refuse or are incapable of comprehending the warning of the past or the promise of the future, who can no more turn West and out upon God's great broad acres, trust themselves to work out successfully the sentence passed upon man ages ago, than a brick can get out of the wall in which it has been fitted with thousands of others, by the mason's trowel.

The lure of the city with all its known cruelty proves stronger for thousands than the bright open land of room and of opportunity.

If so many many men were not so warped in their mental development and so absolutely incapable of dealing with the great problem of self preservation, there would not be the cry of the miserable and the wretched from the crowded cities, and the call for men from out of the land of opportunity.

It does seem strange that men will exist, suffer and perish in a city and refuse to live and prosper in the new country, but they always have done it and present conditions show no promise of a change in that stubborn and inexplicable determination.

Good Job

Private Secretary Enjoys Many Benefits

By ARTHUR J. O'NEILL

A WEEK or so ago a young man asked what the opportunities are for man stenographers in the business world.

I am a stenographer of ten years' experience, and while I would not choose that profession if I had money enough to go to college, still it affords many opportunities not to be had in any other field of endeavor. A stenographer, especially a private secretary, learns some of the most valuable secrets in whatever kind of business he happens to be engaged. He comes into contact with men of large mental caliber and learns their methods. There are not a few men of national fame who began their careers as stenographers, among whom come to my mind as I am writing this letter George B. Cortelyou, ex-secretary of the treasury; Senator William E. Mason, Congressman Hitt and others, and there are many men in the business world who are now managers of large concerns who received their training as stenographers.

Of course, it sometimes depends upon the kind of business you happen to ally yourself with, the man you are working for, and, mainly, upon yourself. The experience that some stenographers have is equivalent to a liberal education.

The writer has served as stenographer through three sessions of the state legislature and has been private secretary to one of the best business men in Chicago. While I have only a grammar school education, I would not trade places with some college graduates that I know of.

If the young man takes up shorthand, I would advise him to learn a good system. Do not try to learn shorthand in two weeks during your spare time. Shorthand is a life study, if you want to make it so.

I would advise the young gentleman that if he does not like hard work he should let shorthand alone. There are three rules for the successful study of shorthand. They are: Practice, practice, practice. I would also advise him that he must be good at taking lots of dictation, for there is no trade where a man must take more abuse than in that of stenography.

In regard to the best system, he can find that out by writing a few letters to some good stenographers asking them that question.

Poetry—Today

FATHER.

He had never made a fortune or a noise
In the world where men are seeking
After fame;
But he had a healthy brood of girls and boys—
Who loved the very ground on which he trod.
They thought him just a little short
of God—
Oh, you should have heard the way they said his name—
"Father."

There seemed to be a tender little prayer
In their voices even when they called him "Dad."
Though the man was never heard of anywhere,
As a hero, yet you somehow understood
He was doing well his part, and
"making good."
And you knew it by the way his children had of saying "Father."

He gave them neither eminence nor wealth;
But he gave them blood untainted with a vice,
And the influence of undiluted
health;
He was honest, and unpurchasable
and kind;
He was clean in heart, and body
and in mind;
—So he made them heirs to riches
beyond price, this Father.

He never preached or schooled, and the rod—
Well, he used it as a tuning pole
in play;
But he showed the tender sympathy
of God.
To his children in their troubles
and their joys,
He was always chum and comrade
with his boys,
And his daughters—oh, you ought to hear them say—
"Father."

Now, of all this world's achievements, 'tis the least
To perpetuate the species, it is done

TWO CALLS.

From out of the far northwest comes the call for laboring men and mechanics. Many thousand can be used, so it is claimed, on what must be accounted reliable authority, in the district about the city of Spokane, and many thousand more in the city proper, it is asserted, can find employment now, even before work on enormous public improvements, now under contemplation, is begun.

The wage scale in effect is given at from $2.00 to $2.75 per day for construction work and from $30 to $40 per month for farm work.

The call for men to come and work is as loud and as earnest, although not as distressing as that other call which comes out of the overcrowded cities of the East that men are starving for lack of work, at which they can earn enough money by honest toil to sustain themselves and their families.

The past winter has been a hard one, perhaps the most severe one which the poorer classes have been fated to endure in all their troubled lives, and the call from out the West should give hope to those who have suffered and are in distress.

From out that western land of promise is still extended the hand of hope and in the East the guide-posts still point West for opportunity.

Rapidly as our great West and Northwest has developed, and rapidly as it is still going forward, there is still better prospects for struggling humanity to better conditions than exists in the crowded cities of the East.

Notwithstanding the awful experiences passed through, notwithstanding the desolate prospect of the future, there are still thousands upon thousands of miserable human beings who refuse or are incapable of comprehending the warning of the past or the promise of the future, who can no more turn West and out upon God's great broad acres, trust themselves to work out successfully the sentence passed upon man ages ago, than a brick can get out of the wall in which it has been fitted with thousands of others, by the mason's trowel.

The lure of the city with all its known cruelty proves stronger for thousands than the bright open land of room and of opportunity.

If so many many men were not so warped in their mental development and so absolutely incapable of dealing with the great problem of self preservation, there would not be the cry of the miserable and the wretched from the crowded cities, and the call for men from out of the land of opportunity.

It does seem strange that men will exist, suffer and perish in a city and refuse to live and prosper in the new country, but they always have done it and present conditions show no promise of a change in that stubborn and inexplicable determination.

Private Secretary Enjoys Many Benefits

By ARTHUR J. O'NEILL

WEEK or so ago a young man asked what the opportunities are for man stenographers in the business world.

I am a stenographer of ten years' experience, and while I would not choose that profession if I had money enough to go to college, still it affords many opportunities not to be had in any other field of endeavor. A stenographer, especially a private secretary, learns some of the most valuable secrets in whatever kind of business he happens to be engaged. He comes into contact with men of large mental caliber and learns their methods. There are not a few men of national fame who began their careers as stenographers, among whom come to my mind as I am writing this letter George B. Cortelyou, ex-secretary of the treasury; Senator William E. Mason, Congressman Hitt and others, and there are many men in the business world who are now managers of large concerns who received their training as stenographers.

Of course, it sometimes depends upon the kind of business you happen to affiliate yourself with, the man you are working for, and, mainly, upon yourself. The experience that some stenographers have is equivalent to a liberal education.

The writer has served as stenographer through three sessions of the state legislature and has been private secretary to one of the best business men in Chicago. While I have only a grammar school education, I would not trade places with some college graduates that I know of.

If the young man takes up shorthand, I would advise him to learn a good system. Do not try to learn shorthand in two weeks during your spare time. Shorthand is a life study, if you want to make it so.

I would advise the young gentleman that if he does not like hard work he should let shorthand alone. There are three rules for the successful study of shorthand. They are: Practice, practice, practice. I would also advise him that he must be good at taking lots of abuse, for there is no trade where a man must take more abuse than in that of stenography.

In regard to the best system, he can find that out by writing a few letters to some good stenographers asking them that question.

Poetry—Today

FATHER.

He had never made a fortune or a noise

In the world where men are seeking after fame;

But he had a healthy brood of girls and boys:

Who loved the very ground on which he trod.

They thought him just a little short of God—

Oh, you should have heard the way they said his name—

"Father."

There seemed to be a tender little prayer

In their voices, even when they called him "Dad."

Though the man was never heard of anywhere,

As a hero, yet you somehow understood

He was doing well his part, and "making good."

And you knew it by the way his children had of saying "Father."

He gave them neither emolument nor wealth;

But he gave them blood untainted with a vice,

And the opulence of undiluted health;

He was honest, and unpurchasable and kind;

He was clean in heart, and body, and in mind;

—So he made them heirs to riches beyond price—this Father.

He never preached or schooled, and the rod—

Well, he used it as a tuning pole in play;

But he showed the tender sympathy of God

To his children in their troubles and their joys.

He was always chum and comrade with his boys.

And his daughters—oh, you ought to hear them say—

"Father."

Now, of all this world's achievements, 'tis the best

To perpetuate the species; it is done

By the insect, and the serpent, and the beast;

But the man who keeps his habits and his thought

Worth bestowing on his offspring, love beget—

Then the highest earthly glory he has won

When he hears a loving daughter, or a son, say "Father."

The Washington High School Art Gallery

Description of the Ever Growing and Cherished Art Gallery as Written by Ruth Smith and Pronounced Best of a Number Submitted to Judges--"The Winged Victory" Coveted.

For many years each Freshman Class of the Washington High School has raised funds by means of bazaars and other methods for purchasing a work of art for the High School Art Gallery until the gallery contains a handsome collection which is justly prized by the school.

A few days ago a number of pupils took part in a contest for the honor of writing the best story of the Art Gallery, and the following article by Ruth Smith was pronounced the best:

The Washington High School has long cherished the ambition of becoming the proud possessor of a statue of the "Winged Victory." For years classes have come and classes have gone and today that ambition still remains unfulfilled. However hope is ever present in the heart of youth and it is the desire of one and all that "Victory" shall preside over the new high school building. It is out of the dim and misty past that praises of victory as sung by the poets of old, have come the present adds her quota, and the future will follow in the steps of her predecessors. To attempt to add to these praises is not my intention, but rather to give, in my own prosaic words a description of the Art Gallery of the Washington High School by means of which we have tried to reconcile our most ambitious dreams with our more moderate pocketbooks.

Concerning each picture in the collection the following theme contains the story from which the artist has taken the text for his picture, and a description of the picture. In one or two cases where the picture is simply a photograph or an engraving the story is given together with the description.

For the theme of one of his most striking pictures Rivers has taken Persepolis. Persepolis, that great stone-terraced district built by the toiling slaves of the Persian kings here dwelt the Persian rulers in their beautiful palaces. Here often sounded the babble of gay voices and often was seen the flash of bright garments, the froth and foam of a careless existence. But the vengeance of Alexander the Great cut short this life in 321 B. C., ruins stood in the place of the palaces and the people were scattered broadcast over the earth.

In the picture "Persepolis," this haunting note of loneliness is pre-

Helenus, a Trojan seer and brother of Hector. Years passed and at last Helenus died, then Andromache whose life had been so variable returned with her son, Peramus, to her native country Asia Minor, and there founded the town of Pergamus.

"The Captive Andromache" presents Andromache's idea concerning her treatment as a captive. In the background are rocky hills and white clouds. The real scene is around the well which seems to be a common gathering place. This well in the right foreground is surrounded by maidens drawing water. Andromache, clothed in black, stands alone in the center of the picture, waiting with lowered head her turn at the well. No one stands near her, she seems to be shunned by all. Some view her with scorn, some with indifference, while others turn their backs upon her, for she is merely a slave.

The incident of Washington crossing the Delaware was taken by Leontz and the result was the picture "Washington Crossing the Delaware." In the background are the wooded shores of New Jersey and the river full of heaving blocks of ice. Other boats containing Washington's men are putting out in the distance, but the boat of Washington occupies the foreground. The great commander stands upright at the prow, gazing out over the river. Behind him flutters the flag. The boat is crowded with soldiers, some of whom are looking at the ice which threatens to break the boat.

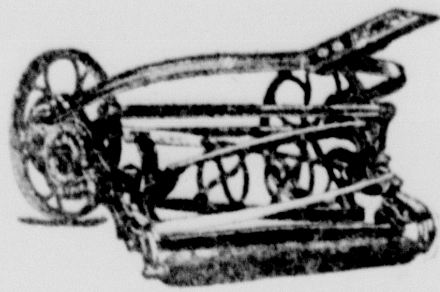

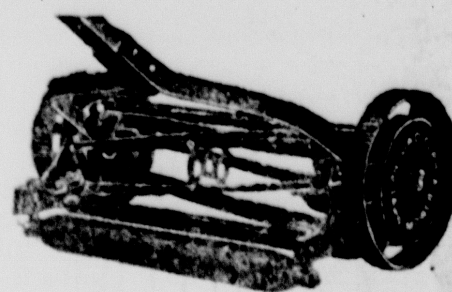

The Parthenon was an ancient Greek building sacred to the goddess Athena. The architecture of this wonderful structure was harmonious and catenated. The beautiful frieze and pediments, which adorned it were sculptured by the Greek master Phidias. The temple was in the simple but massive Doric style and was built of marble from the mountain Pentelion. In text it was used as a powder magazine by the Turks. By some accident the powder exploded and this destroyed over half of the most beautiful and of the finest specimen of Greek architecture. Nevertheless, the ruins are still the most highly prized memorial of the cultured Greeks.

In the middle distance in the photograph stands the ruins of the temple. Only a few columns with a portion of a wall standing here and there remain of this, the greatest piece of architecture in the world, ancient and modern. In the foreground lie pieces of mighty pillars scattered in every direction. One might almost imagine it the playground of some mighty cyclone.

In his Egyptian campaign Napoleon Bonaparte fought near the Pyramids the famous Battle of the Pyramids in 1798. This battle was the crowning victory of his campaign in Egypt. In this battle the French troops were pitted against the famous Mameluke cavalry, an order founded in 1171. Before the battle Napoleon in order to encourage his men, pointed to the Pyramids and cried, "Soldiers, forty centuries are looking down upon

The Washington High School Art Gallery

Description of the Ever Growing and Cherished Art Gallery as Written by Ruth Smith and Pronounced Best of a Number Submitted to Judges—"The Winged Victory" Coveted.

For many years each Freshman Class of the Washington High School has raised funds by means of bazaars and other methods for purchasing a work of art for the High School Art Gallery until the gallery contains a handsome collection which is justly prized by the school. A few days ago a number of pupils took part in a contest for the honor of writing the best story of the Art Gallery and the following article by Ruth Smith was pronounced the best.

The Washington High School has long cherished the ambition of becoming the proud possessor of a statue of the "Winged Victory." For years classes have come and classes have gone and today that ambition still remains unfulfilled. However, hope is ever present in the heart of youth and it is the desire of one and all that "Victory" shall preside over the new high school building. It is out of the dim and misty past that praises of victory as sung by the poets of old, have come the present adds her quota, and the future will follow in the steps of her predecessors. To attempt to add to these praises is not my intention, but rather to give, in my own prosaic words a description of the Art Gallery of the Washington High School by means of which we have tried to reconcile our most ambitious dreams with our more modest pocketbooks. Concerning each picture in the collection the following theme contains the story from which the artist has taken the text for his picture and a description of the picture. In one or two cases where the picture is simply a photograph or an engraving the story is given together with the description.

For the theme of one of his most striking pictures Riviere has taken Persepolis. Persepolis, that great stone-terrace built by the toiling slaves of the Persian kings here dwelt the Persian rulers in their beautiful palaces. Here often sounded the babble of gay voices and often was seen the flash of bright garments, the froth and foam of a careless existence. But the vengeance of Alexander the Great cut short this life in 321 B. C. ruins stood in the place of the palaces and the people were scattered broadcast over the earth.

dominant. A mountain whose rocky sides are unrelieved by forests is seen in the distance while nearer, stark against the sky, stand the ruins of the Persian palaces. To the crevices of the stone steps of the terrace cling a few vines as though flaunting their life in the face of such complete desolation. Lions stalk silently over the stones and a lizard sunning himself on the warm pavement, adds the last touch of overwhelming desolation.

One of the finest pictures is the "Pilgrims Going to Church," by Boughton. The picture presents a background of gray sky, wintry woods, and snowy fields dotted with stumps. What a story do these same stumps, white and unmarked by the weather, tell of indomitable courage and unshaken faith. With what hopes were clearings made, trees felled and cabins reared! Here in the midst of the snowy solitude and the unbroken wilderness these stern conquerors of the wild continent wrestled with untold hardships and toiled for the right of worshiping God in their own way. Winter trees had not, faith, hope and courage they had and with the aid of these three they built their cabins and extended their settlements throughout that region, and one of the first buildings erected was always the church. So on this cold and snowy morning we find a little band of Pilgrims waiting their way towards the little log church in the distance. On the left, clad in their quaint attire, the women carrying their Bibles, the men their guns, this procession in the foreground attracts the eye instantly. We should notice this picture particularly because of the characterization which it shows of the founders of the American nation.

The picture, "The Captive Andromache," was painted by Leighton. Andromache was the wife of Hector, one of the heroes of the Trojan War. The son of Andromache and Hector was Astyanax. During the Trojan War Astyanax was slain by the Greeks who forced Andromache to look on at his death. Hector soon shared the fate of Astyanax. Troy fell, and when the captives of war were divided Andromache was claimed by Neoptolemus who took her to Epirus. After a time however Neoptolemus quarreled with Orestes and was killed in combat. Andromache was now married to Helenus, a Trojan seer and brother of Hector. Years passed and at last Helenus died, then Andromache whose life had been so variable returned with her son, Peramun, to her native country Asia Minor, and there founded the town of Pergamus.

"The Captive Andromache" presents Andromache's idea concerning her treatment as a captive. In the background are rocky hills and white clouds. The real scene is around the well which seems to be a common gathering place. This well in the right foreground is surrounded by maidens drawing water. Andromache, clothed in black, stands alone in the center of the picture waiting with lowered head her turn at the well. No one stands near her. She seems to be shunned by all. Some view her with scorn, some with indifference, while others turn their backs upon her, for she is merely a slave.

The incident of Washington crossing the Delaware was taken by Lentze and the result was the picture, "Washington Crossing the Delaware." In the background are the wooded shores of New Jersey and the river full of heaving blocks of ice. Other boats containing Washington's men are putting out in the distance, but the boat of Washington occupies the foreground. The great commander stands upright at the prow, gazing out over the river. Behind him flutters the flag held carefully by two men. The officers in the crowded boat struggle with the oars pushing away the huge cakes of ice which threaten to crush the sides of their small craft. The whole picture is a fine example of the many hardships endured by the "Father of our country" and his brave men for the sake of the American nation.

The Parthenon was an ancient Greek building sacred to the goddess Athena. The architecture of this wonderful structure, with its temple and colonnades, the beautiful frieze and pediments, which adorned it were sculptured by the Greek master Phidias. The temple was in the simple, but massive Ionic style and was built of marble from the mountains, Pentellicus. In 1687 it was used as a powder magazine by the Turks. By some accident the powder exploded and this destroyed over half of the most beautiful and of the finest specimen of Greek architecture. Nevertheless, the ruins are still the most highly prized memorial of the cultured Greeks.

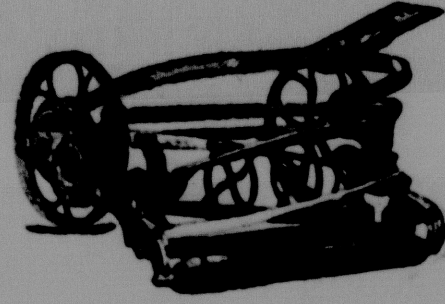

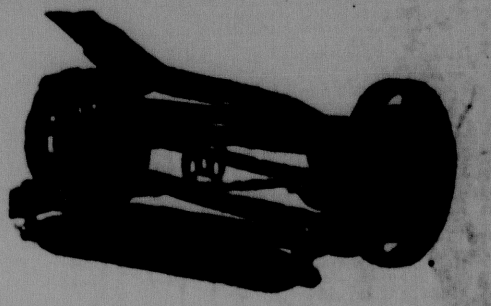

In the middle distance, in the photograph, stands the ruins of the temple. Only a few columns with a portion of a wall standing here and there remain of this, the greatest piece of architecture in the world, ancient and modern. In the foreground in pieces of mighty pillars scattered in every direction. One might almost imagine if the playground of some mighty cyclone.

In his Egyptian campaign Napoleon Bonaparte fought near the Pyramids the famous Battle of the Pyramids in 1798. This battle was the crowning victory of his campaign in Egypt. In this battle the French troops were pitted against the famous Mameluke cavalry, an order founded in 1171. Before the battle Napoleon in order to encourage his men, pointed to the Pyramids and cried, "Soldiers, forty centuries are looking down upon

After Eleven Days Trial Gerhardt Road Case Ends

Plaintiff Awarded Damages in the Sum of $1221.34---Jury Was Out Over Three Hours.

After eleven days' trial and a hard fought legal battle, the Gerhardt road case came to an end in Probate court at 11 o'clock Wednesday night, the jury awarding both plaintiffs damages for land and to land, after having considered the facts from 7:30 p. m. or about three hours.

George E. Roth, one of the plaintiffs, was awarded $375 for land and $328 for damages. Harry Fitzgerald was awarded $156 for land and $362.34 for damages. These amounts represent practically the same as awarded by the viewers last fall, the one exception being $258 more damages for Mr. Fitzgerald.

The Gerhardt road case grew out of a petition signed by Ed Gerhardt and others, calling for a road from the Bloomingburg and New Holland road to the Waterloo pike, passing through the lands of Roth, Fitzgerald and others.

Upon final hearing the Commissioners granted the prayer of the petitioners and later the damage to the Roth and Fitzgerald lands was assessed. This did not amount to as much as the two men desired, and they brought suit against Ed Gerhardt and others. F. A. Chaffin represented the plaintiffs and Humphrey Jones and H. H. Sanderson the defendants, and during the eleven days the case was tried before the jury, the verdict being returned as above mentioned. It has not been learned whether the case will be carried up.

The principal feature of the plaintiff's plea was that the road passing through their lands cut the remainder of the farm off from the creek which passed through a small portion of the lands, and live stock on pasture could not reach the creek for water.

The jury consisted of J. S. Cockerill, F. M. Kier, Ed Dice, Frank DeWitt, Elba Wilson, Wm. Rodgers, A. W. Hains, P. F. Ortman, Otha Dawson, M. S. Green, J. H. Knox and Geo. H. Bilegar.

Sir Galahad saw the Holy Grail which was supposed to be the cup out of which Christ drank at the Last Supper. All the knights of King Arthur's Round Table had sought the Grail far and near but in vain until Sir Galahad won the Holy cup through his nobleness and purity.

The picture "Sir Galahad" is well known. In the midst of a forest stands the knight with his beautiful white horse. Sir Galahad's armor, shining and undented, shows that he is about to start on his quest. As he stands there with bared head gazing among the trees, he seems to see a vision of his long toilsome search crowned at the end with its glorious success.

In the year 80 A. D. the Roman emperor, Titus, completed the Colosseum which had been begun many years before by Vespasian. Its walls were one hundred and sixty feet high and its diameter was five hundred and seventy-four feet. It was built in three rows of columns and between these columns were arches joining open galleries running throughout the building. The arena was surrounded by three tiers of seats corresponding to the three rows of columns on the outside. The lower tier containing the royal boxes, the other two the seats for the common people. At the great dedication of this, the largest of Roman amphitheatres, the games lasted for one hundred days. Many wild beasts were slain. All Rome gave itself up to pleasure.

The picture of the Colosseum shows clearly the high circular walls, pierced with arches and ornamented with partly destroyed columns. On the left side of the picture the three rows of arches are topped with a high expanse of blank wall while on the right side this wall has been torn down. And so parts of this great building remain as a memorial of the Roman people but its great paved spaces no longer echo to the multitude and the arena has long since ceased to hold the roaring beast or the terrified slave.

In Adair's painting, "End of the Day," the background is formed by the sunset sky, low, rounded hills, dark with the coming of twilight, and the group of small cottages gleaming white at their feet. In the foreground trudges a bent laborer returning home from his day's work. He is clad in rough clothes and carries his implements of the field over his shoulder. As he follows the path along the bank of the curving stream whose waters mirror the black trunks of the bordering trees, his eyes are turned out over the pastures to the fading sunset and the deepening dusk on the hills.

Of all the games of the circus the chariot race was the favorite of the Roman people. Great crowds of the excitement loving Romans, always attended these races which were held in the largest circuses. Here were joined the rich and the poor, the high and the lowly.

Mr. Wagner's picture "The Chariot Race" shows the Circus Maximus. In the rear the crowded seats rise row on row while in the foreground on the right and left are the richly ornamented royal boxes filled with beautiful women and proud men, an excited company. Between these boxes is the race course. In the middle foreground are the racers. Typical of voluptuous Rome is the picture, the straining horses, the heavy rocking chariots, the shouting drivers, the cracking whips, and the heavy cloud of dust.

Plaintiff Awarded Damages in the Sum of $1221.34---Jury Was Out Over Three Hours.

After eleven days' trial and a hard fought legal battle, the Gerhardt road case came to an end in Probate court at 11 o'clock Wednesday night, the jury awarding both plaintiffs damages for land and to land, after having considered the facts from 7:30 p. m. or about three hours.

George E. Roth, one of the plaintiffs, was awarded $375 for land and $328 for damages. Harry Fitzgerald was awarded $156 for land and $362.34 for damages. These amounts represent practically the same as awarded by the viewers last fall, the one exception being $258 more damages for Mr. Fitzgerald.

The Gerhardt road case grew out of a petition signed by Ed Gerhardt and others, calling for a road from the Bloomingburg and New Holland road to the Waterloo pike, passing through the lands of Roth, Fitzgerald and others.

Upon final hearing the Commissioners granted the prayer of the petitioners and later the damage to the Roth and Fitzgerald lands was assessed.

This did not amount to as much as the two men desired, and they brought suit against Ed Gerhardt and others. F. A. Chaffin represented the plaintiffs and Humphrey Jones and H. H. Sanderson the defendants, and during the eleven days the case was tried before the jury, the affair was gone into in detail, the verdict being returned as above mentioned. It has not been learned whether the case will be carried up.

The principal feature of the plaintiff's plea was that the road passing through their lands cut the remainder of the farm off from the creek which passed through a small portion of the lands, and live stock on pasture could not reach the creek for water.

The jury consisted of J. S. Cockerill, F. M. Kier, Ed Dice, Frank DeWitt, Elba Wilson, Wm. Rodgers, A. W. Hains, P. F. Orman, Orha Dawson, M. S. Green, J. H. Knox and Geo. H. Bluegar.

Last Chance

We had to send in another order, owing to the fact that a large number of people, sent in demands for 98c and $1.20 leather bound Webster's New Revised Dictionaries, when we announced a few weeks ago that we would cease handling same when our supply was exhausted.

The demand largely exceeded our supply, but our shipment just received has taken care of all orders on hand, and we have still a few Dictionaries left, indexed and unindexed.

When this supply is exhausted it will be impossible to get another Dictionary through us.

If you want an up-to-date leather-bound Dictionary, actually worth $2.50, get busy while you can get one indexed for $1.20 or one without index for 98c.

"Yes, Mary, of course, I do. There is a little book that comes with each tube of the shampoo that contains a photo reproduction of her hand-written letter, also one from Miss Melba, Baroness Ramsey, and Mrs. Levi P. Morton."

"But, Grace, I never heard of a private formula of a noted hair specialist, enjoyed exclusively by millionaires, royalty and the elite being brought within reach of the general public before, did you?"

"No, Mary, but it is really wonderful what Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream will do for one's hair."

HART URGES BASEBALL PROBE

Defines Meaning of Recent Alleged California Interview About "Trust"—More Like Partnership.

James A. Hart, former owner of the Chicago National league baseball club returned to Chicago the other day after a five months' tour of the world and immediately upon his arrival gave an explanation of the California interview, in which he was quoted as welcoming a congressional investigation of the so-called "baseball trust."

In explaining the interview Hart declared he would welcome such investigation.

James A. Hart.

Investigation for the same reason any person wrongfully accused of a misdemeanor should welcome an investigation which would be sure to establish his innocence. He declared there never had been such a thing as a baseball "trust" and said that the honesty of the men behind the sport was the only thing which had kept it on so high a plane.

Instead of being a trust, he declared baseball was more like a partnership. Owners of rival clubs, he stated, instead of being opponents, were in reality business partners, sharing gate receipts, combining to defray expenses and having identically the same interests at heart.

In regard to the statement that present day club owners were "money mad" Hart declared he had reference solely to the high prices paid for individual players and to the number of men under contract to various clubs. High purchase prices, he declared, were bad for baseball in that they gave the wealthier and more prosperous clubs an undue advantage over smaller ones in the same league.

AROUND THE BASES

Lincoln, in the Illinois-Missouri league, has signed L. E. Ehrig as manager. He was a catcher with Battle Creek in the Southern Michigan league for a time last year.

Seven of the eight International league pilots will direct their baseball teams from the coaching lines this season. George Stallings, the Buffalo steersman, will be the only manager who will handle the lines from the bench.

Ernie Johnson, the Chicago broker, who played awhile with Dubuque last season, but was not a regular because he could not leave his business in Chicago, has agreed to stick to the game this year and Dubuque fans are delighted.

William Hanrahan, son of the famous "Red" Hanrahan, who played shortstop for the Chicago White Stockings, has been signed to play with the York Tri-State baseball team. He is a pitcher who weighs 175 pounds.

Catcher John Massing has been made manager of the Danville team of the I. L. I. league, succeeding Jack McCarthy. President Boyle says the appointment was made at the behest of the players and in the interest of harmony.

Roll Of Death Now Completed

At first there was talk that newspaper reporters would not be permitted on the pier, but after talks between officials of the Cunard line, representatives of the White Star line and government officials, the understanding was that a fixed number of reporters from each paper would be allowed on the pier. Letters have been received at the Cunard line offices protesting against the presence of reporters on the pier. One of the letters was sent by J. P. Morgan & Company. It was said that members of the Morgan family, the Guggenheims and the Astors had requested the Cunard people to keep reporters off the pier.

DENIES RUMORS

Franklin Says News of Disaster Given Out Promptly.

New York, April 18.—One of the persistent reports was to the effect that the White Star line knew of the sinking of the Titanic hours before the announcement of the fact was made at the offices of the White Star line at about 6.30 o'clock on Monday evening. P. A. S. Franklin said when asked about these reports:

"I have denied these reports more than once. I say most emphatically that this line did not have a word of the sinking of the Titanic until a few minutes before it was announced by me on Monday evening."

ADDED TO LIST

Names of Several Survivors Did Not Appear on Titanic's Books.

New York, April 18.—This is a list of those saved by the Carpathia, none of whose names is on the Titanic's passenger list.

Miss Antoinette, Miss Appieranell, Edward E. Cameron, Miss Ethel Carside, William Charlton, Miss Sarah Daniel, Miss Nina Hope, Miss J. A. Hold, Miss Olivia Middleder, Mrs. Mahan, Mrs. Letta Minderson, Miss Ellen Pomeroy and Mrs. Nora Sedley.

SAVED BY DREAM

Akron Man Had Premonition and Canceled Titanic Passage.

London, April 18.—Crowds continued to gather at the White Star office and the police had to be called upon to relieve the congestion.

Among the Titanic's passengers was Charles Williams, the professional tagger champion of the world, who was on his way to New York to play Standing the American champion, for a stake of $5,000.

J. C. Middleton, vice president of the Akron & Canton railroad, who booked on the Titanic on March 22, told a story of how in a dream on April 3 he saw the Titanic capsized in midocean. "The following night," said Mr. Middleton, "I dreamt exactly the same thing. The next day I told my wife and several friends about it. Afterwards, on receiving cable advices from America that business did not require that I should cross immediately, I canceled the passage."

Hope Is Blasted.

Boston, April 18.—While officials at the local offices of the Leyland Line Steamship company refused to be quoted as holding out any hopes that any bodies of victims of the ill-fated Titanic might have been picked up by the liner Californian, which will dock here some time late Friday afternoon, there is the faintest hope that such is the case.

Another Hope Blasted.

St. Johns, N. F., April 18.—A story has been circulating that fishing schooners rescued some of the Titanic's passengers, but inquiry of experienced mariners elicits the unanimous opinion that it is highly improbable any fishing vessels were in that vicinity at this season of the year.

Rush Coffins to Scene.

Halifax, April 18.—With 200 coffins stacked on her forward deck, the cable ship Mackay-Bennett sailed to explore the scene of the foundering of the Titanic and pick up any floating bodies, restoring them to loved ones ashore.

Hayes Among the Rescued.

Halifax, April 18.—Confirmation has been received here of the rescue of C. M. Hayes, president of the Grand Trunk railroad. He and his wife and daughter are with the other saved passengers on the Carpathia.

THE LATEST FIGURES.

New York, April 18.—The list of cabin passengers of the Titanic saved and missing, as amended by the addition of names to the list of survivors, is as follows:

• Saved—First cabin, 203; second cabin, 129. Total, 332.
• Missing—First cabin, 155; second cabin, 198. Total, 353.
• This adds 44 names to the list of saved. It indicates also that 400 or more of the steerage and crew are safe.

PLAYED BASEBALL EVEN IN HIS DREAMS

Joe Benz, New White Sox Pitcher.

White Sox players say that Joe Benz, the new pitcher acquired from Des Moines, "dreams" baseball and "Buck," the White Sox trainer, tells the story that confirms it.

"Buck" says shortly after Benz joined the team and when on his first trip, the train was approaching the end of the journey, and the trainer went through the Pullman to arouse the players that they might dress. He came to Benz's berth and found him snoring loudly. "Buck" took him by the shoulder, gave him a shake and yelled loudly in his ear: "Get out! Benz pushed him away, rolled over on his side and bellowed so it could be heard all over the car:

"What do you want to take me out of the game for? ain't I pitching good ball? Leave me in and I can beat 'em."

It took a few more shakes by "Buck" to awaken the sleeping pitcher, and then he rubbed his eyes and said: "I thought it was the boss sending me to the bench; guess I was dreaming."

VETERAN PLAYERS PROVE VALUABLE ASSETS

JIM MCGUIRE

DUKE FARRELL

WILBUR ROBINSON

Trio of Old Timers.

Big league clubs make no mistake in carrying such men as Robinson, Farrell, Jim McGuire and other veterans. These old heads have a good influence on the young players and can steer the boys over the hurdles safely. The time will come when every well-organized club will have a veteran player on the pay-roll. They give the youngsters confidence and strengthen the hands of the manager.
